
From:
Sent: Thursday, 20 May 2004 1:26 a.m.
To: spamsubmissions@MED.GOV.T.NZ
Subject: spam

Excerpt from the Primary Fundamental Right;

"Because the Primary Fundamental Right forbids all forms of censorship, 'spamming' or the sending of unwanted communication by email, letter, phone or any other method regardless whether it is commercial, private, in bulk or in single form, would continue freely. Under the Primary Fundamental Right the onus is on the individual to do their own censoring for themselves at their computer or at their phone or letterbox. There can be no governmental censorship. No particular group would be able to legislate their moral or ethical code onto others. All forms of communication has to be free from government interference. Obviously spam would not exist if it was not profitable, many people like their 'spam' just as many people like the telemarketers or the letterbox junk mail. If they didn't enjoy these communications then these marketeers would have gone out of business long ago. It must not be forgotten that any attempt to stop spam through legislation is also an attempt to inhibit free trade. Those who want censorship must do their own censoring for themselves only and not expect governments to do it for them.

Spam is a variant of speech and to ban it would be a further attack on free speech and possibly also an attack on the 1st Amendment. Spam hysteria like all hysteria is produced when reason is ignored. Because of this hysteria the Liberal/National Party coalition government of Australia, helped by the main opposition, the Australian Labor Party, has passed laws allowing for the search of houses and confiscation of goods or computers thought to be owned by 'spammers'. It appears no search warrant is necessary nor do the police have to be involved and probably nor do the 'spammers' really have to be 'spammers'. Under this bill known as the 'Spam Bill 2003' anyone not able to recall their password for these spam cops can be jailed for 6 months. Australia is already one of the most censored of the first world countries. "

Will New Zealand also listen to the hysterics?

<http://www.primaryfundamentalright.org/pfrwhat.html>

From Bernard W Palmer.

Owner and designer of www.cashramsapm.com the worlds first spam free paying email system.

This is a paying email. If you had received this message inside a CashRamSpam email account you would have been credited the amount of money you want for receiving email (minus a 10% service charge). Sign up for a free CashRamSpam account from this link and we will pay AU$1 into the sender's CashRamSpam email account. Once you have a CashRamSpam account you also can earn $1 when you successfully refer a friend to CashRamSpam.